

JONATHAN LEVINE GALLERY

Doze Green

Doze Green was born in 1964 in New York City and is currently based in northern California. In 1976, he began painting subway cars and became one of the original b-boy members of Rock Steady Crew, the group that pioneered breakdancing. Soon after, he transitioned from graffiti to studio work and mural commissions. In 2010, audio of an interview with Green discussing his work along with a slideshow of his images was featured in The New York Times. One of Green's works was recently acquired by Grammy award-winning musical artist and producer Kasseem "Swizz Beatz" Dean and will be exhibited at Scope-Miami 2014 along with a selection of other works from the Dean Collection.
